

The Press & Journal April 12, 2013

Museums in the money

Two Highland museums are to benefit from a share of £500,000 capital funding from Museums Galleries Scotland.

Glencoe Museum will get a new thatched roof, using traditional techniques and materials.

Historylinks Museum, at Dornoch, will be able to cut overheads and improve its carbon footprint by installing solar panels.

Culture Secretary Fiona Hyslop, above, said: "Scotland's museums and galleries are tremendously important, telling the story of our nation and attracting visitors."