

DORNOCH Heritage Society held its Taste of Burns night on Friday when a packed audience was entertained to an evening of traditional music, recitals and a sumptuous supper. Robbie Rowantree hosted the evening which began with Tricia Andrews leading 12 musicians from Dornoch Primary School and Academy (pictured). Gillian "Bee" Sutherland piped in the haggis, held aloft with panache by Peter Wild, chairman of the heritage society, which was then addressed in flamboyant style by Robbie Rowantree. Ronnie Bruce gave the Selkirk Grace and a tasty meal of cock-a-leekie soup, haggis, neeps and tatties and Tam o' Shanter trifle was enjoyed. Peter thanked the kitchen for the quality of the haggis. Other entertainment included the beautiful voice of David Munro, accompanied by Roddy Maclean and Donald Goskirk. Robbie delivered an inspiring Tam o' Shanter and Jimmy Melville recited John Barleycorn, in his inimitable style. Gilly gave a rousing medley of tunes including the traditional excerpts from Rod Stewart and Elvis! A great set of traditional tunes from Donald followed by Auld Lang Syne concluded a memorable evening. All funds raised at the evening go to support the work of Historylinks Museum.
