

Copy of a bill of fare from Polson's in 1896

The bill heading identifies the shop as a Family Grocers, Draper and General Merchant, Ironmongery, Seeds and Drugs. It describes some of the goods, as cheese, sugar spice, butter, bread, hams, syrups, treacle, soap, candles, paraffin, oil, brushes, tinned meats and preserved fruits of the finest quality.

All bills shown in this book were lent by Lily Byron. Unfortunately Grandpa had a fondness for 'the bottle' and often bought illegally distilled (or smuggled) whisky. When I was a child he took me out every morning and stood on the bridge waving a red hankie with white spots. This was the signal for two swans 'Billy and Kate' to come to the bridge for buns.

I have vivid memories of him throwing the 'Scotsman' across the room at myself and my brother John and shouting "Confound you" when the noise got out of hand..
