

history celebrates Scotland's bridge building heritage.

With the opening of the Queensferry Crossing last September, it is apposite to celebrate the long and illustrious history of bridges within Scotland and the contribution Scottish engineers have made to bridges around the globe.

Many of these are not only significant engineering achievements, they also make a major statement in terms of architectural design and form part of Scotland's cultural, historic and landscape heritage. The Dornoch Bridge, Bonar Bridge, and many of the other bridges in the vicinity will be discussed.

Bruce Keith is a surveyor and environmentalist.

A retired Scot with a keen interest in Scottish history, he has recently published a book on the subject illustrated by Scottish photographer Lewis Matheson.

Following the talk, there will be a repeat screening of the film first shown in 2015 celebrating the 25th anniversary of the building, walk over and opening of the Dornoch Bridge.

The meeting is open to all with free admission.

This is the last chance to see the seasonal exhibition Heroes & Homecomings as the museum will be closing on October 31.
