

2 Actual D-Day Target for 106 Squadron depicted on a postcard.

The accompanying note reads:

"The famous Pointe du HOC: It is right against this abrupt and crumbly cliff that on June 6, 1944 the second battalion of the US Rangers launched the assault with the help of ropes and folding ladders, in order to reduce a battery whose firing could have been dangerous to the troops landing at OMAHA BEACH."

